Willamette River cleanup

To ☐ HarborComments

To whom it may concern,

The proposed cleanup plan for the Willamette River is unsatisfactory for several reasons, including the fact that it does not go far enough to de-toxify the river and river bottom which is one of the most polluted water ways in the nation. For another, toxic sediments dredged from the river must be removed and taken to an appropriate toxic waste dump. Those responsible for the largest part of the pollution must be held accountable.

People most often come to Oregon for it's beauty and pristine qualities. The state of this river is unacceptable and reflects very badly on Oregon, at the very least.

Thank you,
